CIO Partners Names Carlo Carbetta V.P. of Operations Development

ATLANTA (June 27th, 2008) – CIO Partners, a leader in Executive Search, IT Staffing and Recruitment Strategies, has promoted Carlo Carbetta to Vice President of Operations Development.

Carlo, who has nearly a decade of experience in technical recruiting, is a CIO Partners veteran who has held several key positions in the company over the past five years.

“We have a high level of trust in Carlo,” said H. Michael Burgett, president and managing partner of CIO Partners. “He has a high level of passion, he has a strong motivation to succeed and he is a great member of the CIO Partners family.”

In his new role, Carlo will focus on internal hiring to help fuel the company’s continued growth. He will also lead the company’s Young Gun Training Program, which he has helped build during his tenure. The Young Gun Training Program is an innovative, four-phase training program that develops entry-level employees into staffing professionals and is an important component of CIO Partners’ long-term strategic growth.

Carlo joined CIO Partners in 2003 as a senior recruiter and was subsequently named recruiter of the year. He rapidly excelled in many areas and has continued to take on new roles.

In 2004, Carlo was named Senior Director of Recruiting Operations and assumed responsibility for all national sourcing, testing and hiring for our client partners. He has also played a key role in teaching and motivating recruiters to improve their job performance.
